Instruction Director Says:

Schools Must Prepare Child For World "We Can't Imagine"

C. B. Chandler, Director of Instruction for Appomattox County, was the featured speaker at the first fall meeting of the Junior Woman's Club. He told the members that in education the emphasis has changed from the student with "below average" ability to an increased attention to the college bound student.

He said that "Sputnik", the Soviet satellite, set off a chain reaction among educators in 1953. As an example, Appomattox has this year adopted a whole new method for teaching mathematics. "You'll have to hurry to catch up with your children," Chandler said, when they bring home the new mathematics books, or ask for help in solving mathematical problems the older generation did not study.

"A Look Backward"

Chandler said, "As we go forward, we can't help but look backward." He remarked that we're leaving many things behind in the social and economic revolution taking place. Children now live in an age of anxiety, Chandler added. He axed the women to consider the eternal, unchangeable, and intangible qualities which have been bequeathed to Americans by such famous men as Jefferson, Washington, Lee, and Lincoln. These men, he said, all had "intellectual curiosity," an indispensible quality to men of learning and leadership.

"Teachers and Parents"

Chandler said that despite all the new devices and techniques for learning, the greatest responsibility lies with "us, as teachers and you, as parents."

A Challenge

Chandler asked the Junior Club of Appomattox to consider specialized instruction for children of the county the most. He referred to with reading problems so-called 'slow learners' benefit from a smaller a specially trained te outlined some ways might be organized a all the children of th might receive the be possible.

VTA Keynote Speaker Calls For "Study-Ins," Devotion, Fervor

Keynote speaker for the 2nd Annual Meeting of the Sixth District, Virginia Teachers Association heard Dr. J. Rupert Picott, VTA executive secretary sound a call for "Study-Ins" on the part of all those who seek equal opportunity in America. Picott told the teachers and principals gathered at Carver - Price School Oct. 5, that "there are no limits to what we can accomplish." "This is a time for Americans who are behind to catch up," he said. He asked each teacher for "dedication to duty" so that he or she may say "when children leave me, they will know something."

Any group demanding freedom must walk erect, look tall, and carry something in their heads," Picott said. He said that students must "study-in" with the same devotion and fervor they have displayed in marching in picket lines. "The race that is behind must go faster to catch up," Picott said. "You can't catch up at the same pace as the other fellow is going." And he added that "We need to be conscious of the fact that we are behind. We need to broaden our horizons to encompass the whole world."

District VI Complimented

Picott complimented District 6 of the VTA as "one of the stalwarts" of the organization. He also had high words of praise for those who took part in the march on Washington. "I walked with 2,000 others in Washington," he said. "No other group in the history of the world could have done it so well, so temperately We were marching to make America great."

"Decision Time"

"There is a saying in Uganda," said Picott, " 'without suffering there is no freedom' " It takes " 'suffering and freedom for living' " "Without freedom and suffering, there is no liberty."

Picott quoted another old saying that "those who would get freedom without plowing the ground want something that never existed."

"Adam Clayton Powell to the contrary," said Picott, "this is no black revolution. All America is involved. People of all hues and colors are determined to make America greater. And this is Decision Time."

He called for all present to "emulate Christ's example" in their dedication to doing "excellent work."
